

Mr. Ruxton presents his compliments to the Mayor & Corporation of Cambridge and hopes they will accept his acknowledg= ment of the sincere and heartfelt satisfaction which their munificent gift has afforded him.

Mr. Ruxton, though never forgetting the ignominy of his failure, will never cease to boast of this, the noblest and the proudest of trophy which he has won on the field of literary glory.

Northampton Hall.

Jan 24. 1844.

P.S. Mr. Ruxton proposes assuming an actor's head as his crest in stead of the stage head which he formerly bore.
