My dear Galton

I will come to your meeting if I can but I am in an attack of lumbergs which gets better & sometimes worse and one of the injections which I buy on display is not to be out late.

I have long been of opinion that much light might be thrown on evolution by systematic experiments with animals

whose generations succeed one another at short intervals - or of course with plants.

Practically I should think you would find

a landowner liberal
enough to let you the land rent free - but if the thing succeeds as I think it would you
would soon find it
growing beyond the
modest 20 acre
coupon
